THE Improved White

Sewing Machine

STANDS AHEAD OF ALL OTHERS

In Quality and Simplicity.

It has no Rival. Others blow and try to put it down, but

IT STANDS BOLD AT THE FRONT.

Having sold over 400 in 1881, 1882 and 1883, shows that it

People of Accomac Appreciate Its Merits.

I can sell you other machines for less price. Singer pattern, drop leaf and two drawers, for $25.00; Wilson, Domestic, Howe and any other pattern. Will sell the Royal St. John, drop leaf and six (6) drawers, for $38.00, but I cannot put the White Sewing Machine, as it is the best. Having sold machines for nearly fourteen years, gives me a chance to know something of the tricks which others practice on those who are not posted in machinery. If

You Want a Good Sewing Machine come and see me, or write to me, and I

WILL SELL YOU ANY MACHINE that can be bought.

THE WHITE.

Also, a large stock of FURNITURE,

MATTRESSES, &c., on hand. Repairing of Furniture, Pictures, Frames, or anything else in our line promptly attended to. COFFINS, CASKETS and

TO-MORROW.

To-morrow, and to-morrow.

Oh! and far away.

What treasures lie, when hope is high

Along your shining way.

What promises fulfilled,

What better deeds to do

Than ever yet, are softly set Beneath your skies of blue.

To-morrow, and to-morrow.

O sweet and far away.

Still ever more lead on before

Along your shining way.

Still ever more lift up our eyes

Above what we have won.

To higher needs, and finer deeds

That we have left undone.

Mollie Wilson's Burial.

Mary Wilson had passed the first seventeen years of her life in a country village; then she went to the city to visit her brother and found his attractions so alluring that six months slipped away and the time of her return to country life was as yet, indefinitely postponed. For two months previous to her visit her country friends had died, and each other in telling tales of the city, the wickedness, the subtlety of city sharpers, pickpockets and burglars, until the idea became firmly fixed in her mind that she was going into a den of thieves, but as yet, she had met with no adventure worthy of note, and was fast reaching the conclusion that city people were no worse than their country neighbors, when something occurred which caused her, for a short time at least, to change her mind. But of this, more anon.

She was still there, whole, altho' she had been sought by several very eligible suitors since her arrival in the city, for she was appetitely girl very desirable for her sweet sake, but still more so was Mary Wilson, sister of the wealthy and influential lawyer Wilson, and this was how matters stood, when one Sabbath she chanced to see a stranger in the pew adjoining her brother's, and could not help seeing that the stranger was regarding her with admiring eyes, but she tried to dismiss all thought of him, as she had done of others on similar occasions, but found it impossible. Those dark eyes presented themselves to her mental vision with a persistency for which she could not account.

On Monday evening her brother bought tickets and invited his wife and sister to attend a lecture, and Miss Mollie caught herself wondering, as she doubted her own worthiness, if she should go. Her brother would be there, and if he would look for her. She found the lecture insufferably dull, and concluded, after a time, to return home. She whispered this intention to her brother, who saw her to his carriage, and giving instruction to the coachman to return for them, he went back to his wife, while Miss Mollie was driven rapidly homeward. Arrived there, she left her hat and cloak in the hall and ran lightly up the stairs to her room.

The door was partly open, although she was sure she had closed it, the gas was turned low as she had left it, and in the hall light she saw, before she reached the doorway, a man in the room. His back was toward her, and he was walking toward a closet at the other side of the apartment. He opened the door and stepped inside; one glance told her that the key was in the lock; she ran swiftly across the room, her feet making little or no sound on the thick carpet. "Confound it," she heard him mutter, "why can't they leave things where a fellow can find them?" "Yes," she thought, "her first surprise was correct; this was a burglar." Like a flash she threw herself against the door and turned the key. She was terribly frightened, and felt quite sure that she should faint,
